

CARNEY TO "RAZZ" MAYOR ON PARKING

Magistrate Promises to Give Moore "A Talking To" for Leaving Car at City Hall

SUMMONED FOR HEARING

"I'm going to give the Mayor a talking to and a warning when he appears before me Thursday," said Magistrate Carney today.

He served a summons on Mayor Moore yesterday for leaving his car parked too long at City Hall.

In discussing his sudden descent on the official cars parked around City Hall, Magistrate Carney said:

"I warn every one right now that any one parking around City Hall in violation of the law will be summoned to my office. Besides the Mayor, I summoned twelve others to appear before me Thursday at 10 A. M. There was no ill-feeling on my part toward the Mayor. I look upon him merely as a private citizen who is disobeying the law. The Mayor of Philadelphia is the regulator of the traffic laws, and should set a good example. He did not do it.

"When he walked around the city the other day in the role of a policeman, telling chauffeurs where they could and could not park, he lowered the dignity of his office and should not protect now when he is served the same way. Many motorists have complained about the Mayor's car being parked at City Hall, but have been afraid to report it for fear of losing their jobs.

"The new traffic laws are outrageous anyway, and discriminating. Why should an ordinary citizen with a second-hand car be forced to walk from Pine street or Spring Garden street during the Christmas holidays, while directors of city departments and minor bureau chiefs are allowed to park their cars in the center of the city?"

"Do you agree with Superintendent Mills that the indiscriminate parking of cars in the central part of the city is a menace to public safety, and should be done away with?" Magistrate Carney was asked.

"Oh, Mills is the man who is bailing things up. There have been more accidents since that left-hand turn regulation went into effect than ever before. The only way to solve the traffic problem is to put all the trucks off Broad street; let them use Thirteenth and Fifteenth streets.

The clash between Mayor Moore and Carney came late yesterday afternoon after the magistrate had been angered by the reprimand of a patrolman for allowing his car to stand too long outside City Hall. He protested to the policeman that he had been in the Hall on official business, but the traffic man said that made no difference.

Pinched, the magistrate went on a still hunt around City Hall looking for other machines that were not complying with the regulation. He caught the Mayor's and several others. There was a verbal encounter when Carney approached the Mayor and his secretary, Durell Shuster, as they were leaving City Hall, in the course of which the Mayor characterized Magistrate Carney's act as "a small trick."

The summons for the Mayor was based on an affidavit sworn by James Carney, 1411 South Ewing street, who accompanied the magistrate on his tour around City Hall. The affidavit charges the Mayor with parking his car, some of the time without lights, from 4:35 P. M. to 5:30 P. M.

How to Be an Insurance Salesman

TO HELL anything you must first have something to sell, and, second, you must find somebody who doesn't want it and you sell it to him. If he wants it and you sell it to him you are not a salesman, you are a messenger.

In selling insurance the approach is important. Just as it is in selling anything, you may suppose that the approach consists merely in approaching. Nothing more. Ah, how innocent you are! There are fourteen kinds of approaches—the insidious, the confidential, the ambassadorial, the congressional, etc. I could go on, but you couldn't.

Anybody can be an insurance salesman. Practically anybody is. The reason is obvious. Remember, to be a salesman you must have something to sell. Is there anything in the world of which there is more to sell than insurance?

The supply is inexhaustible. And whenever one kind seems to be getting low they invent a new one. The fellow who is in business selling water power has a fleeting occupation compared to the insurance salesman.

I merely offered in this article to tell you how to be a salesman. I didn't offer to teach you how to sell. There is quite a difference. Any sales manager will tell you that.

But if you must become an insurance salesman, and I suppose you must after you have read this—I don't see how you can resist—I am almost convinced myself—I say if you must learn how to sell insurance, that is easy, too.

Just let it become known around town that you are in the market for some insurance. There will be plenty of salesmen in to see you, and you can watch them work. You may have to retreat to the top of a tall tree and watch them at a distance, or you may even have to dig yourself in and watch them through a periscope, but you can watch them—that's the point. Not only you can, but you'd better.

Tender Gums —A Warning

Beware of gum tenderness that warns of Pyorrhoea. Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhoea—many under forty, also. Loosening teeth indicate Pyorrhoea. Bleeding gums, too.

Remember—these inflamed, bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infesting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's positively prevents Pyorrhoea, if used in time and used consistently. As it hardens the gums the teeth become firmer.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

Brush Your Teeth With Forhan's—How to Use It

Use it twice daily, year in and year out. Wet your brush in cold water, place a half-inch of the refreshing, healing paste on it, then brush your teeth up and down. Use a rolling motion to clean the crevices. Brush the grinding and back surfaces of the teeth. Massage your gums with your Forhan-coated brush—gently at first until the gums harden, then more vigorously. If the gums are very tender, massage with the finger, instead of the brush. If gum shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

The Oldest Industry

Before the first ton of coal had been mined in Pennsylvania or the first mill had turned a wheel, the pioneer farmer had begun to cultivate its rich acres. The growth and prosperity of its cities in later years came only as agriculture was extended and the soil made to yield a greater abundance.

To help the farmer in his task of making two blades of grass or two ears of corn grow where but one grew before is to help the towns and cities as well.

Gasoline and electricity have done this by making the farmer more of a business man and less of a laborer. They have enabled him to feed and clothe the world better than ever before.

The telephone was among the first improvements to come to the mutual aid of the producer in the country and the consumer in the large centers of population. It has robbed the farm of its isolation and lonesomeness. In a large measure it takes the city to the farm and brings the farm to the city.

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania has kept pace with the progress of the State, and in many places has been the advance guard of a community's development. The men and women who build and operate its lines feel that they are rendering a service to city and country alike, and they are ambitious to maintain that service at the highest possible standard.
